

CFO Seminar Series: Selling the Bioscience Company Maximizing the Value of the Enterprise

Speakers

Raymond C. Cheung is a shareholder with Geffen Meshner & Company, P.C. Raymond's primary industry experiences are in technology, manufacturing and distribution, forest products, biotechnology and financial services. His past project experience includes all aspects of internal and external financial reporting, development and review of key performance indicators for finance and operations, as well as assisting clients with FAS 109 tax provision projects and merger and acquisition transactions.

Raymond serves as an executive board member and treasurer for both the Northwest China Council, and Oregon Bioscience Association, he is also a board member of Sustainable Northwest. He is on the finance committee for Oregon 150, as well as serving as mentor for the School of Business at Portland State University and mentor at Oregon Society of Certified Public Accountants

Christopher L. Marsh has been the CEO, President, and CFO, respectively, of several prominent Portland businesses, including Pulse Health, Kronos, Unicru, E*Trade, CCS, Greenbrier and STS. He also has been on the boards of a variety of companies and charitable organizations throughout the United States.

Chris's latest business venture is Pulse Health, a company that developed and patented technology to test through the breath for certain diseases (blood sugar levels, pulmonary diseases, cloistral, free radical damage).

Chris holds a B.S. in Business Administration from Oregon State University. He currently serves as a Board member for the following organizations: the Oregon Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, Aisle 7, Inc, Portland OR, Hubcast, Inc Boston MA, i4cp (the Institute for Corporate Productivity), Seattle WA.,

Michael C. Phillips is a partner with Davis Wright Tremaine LLP; he represents domestic and international clients in securities, mergers and acquisitions, general corporate and business law, and the life sciences. He assists clients in initial and secondary public offerings, formation of joint ventures and ongoing compliance with state and federal securities laws. Michael also provides corporate governance and business advice to boards of directors and executive officers. He has authored articles on federal securities laws, Oregon corporations and securities law.

Michael's clients included: adidas America, Acacia Venture Partners, Auctionpay, AVI BioPharma, Canterbury Park Capital, Celartem, Inc., Communication Intelligence Corp.,

Goldbrook Ventures, Inc., Kaiser Permanente Ventures, Pacific Crest Securities, Inc., Renewal Partners LP, Tag Oil Ltd. and Yamhill Valley Vineyards.